THE EVENING CRITIC. ESTABLISHED AUGUST, 1868.

The National Theater was as usual crowded last night with a brilliant audience to witness the unusually humorous comedy, "The Member for Slocum," presented by Mr. Nat. Goodwin in his inimitable style, and supported by a smoothly-running, unmistakably excellent troupe. The comedy grows with interest the oftener it is seen. There will be a matines this afternoon and Saturday.

Minnie Palmer.

Pretty and plquante little Miss Minnie Palmer, supported by Mr. Graham, charmed a growded and enthusiastic audience at Ford's Open-house last evening. The grace, piquancy and brilliant cleverness of this little lady is marvellous, and the general character of her support is first-class. Matinee Saturday next at 2p. m.

Col. E. W. Oyster, of the rival Pennsylvania Republican Association, here appeared in the hall, and the president calling Mr. J. F. Dinden to the chair, had an extended conference with Mr. Oyster. He then reappeared in the hall, and made an extended speech in favor of harmony and the unification of the two associations. Mr. Brooks offered a resolution that a commit-Brooks offered a resolution that a commit-tee of five be appointed to confer with a similar committee from the Oyster wing, looking toward union. Mr. Forney, a clerk in the Treasury, opposed this, holding that all overtures should come from the Oyster wing. Several members grade, saving the all overtures should come from the Oyster wing. Several members spoke, saying the regular association could, in its strength, afford to be magnanimous. Mr. Forney would consent to extend a general invitation to all Pennsylvanians to join the association. He finally consented to an amendment that a committee, consisting of J. S. Blair, H. A. Cobaugh, R. W. Forney, Joseph Brown and John Calbert, specially invite the Oyster faction to join. Amid much laughter this motion was adopted, and the association, breathing love and amity toward the Oyster faction, adjourned. It is believed by prominent men in both associations that a basis of agreement will be reached this week honorable to both factions.

East Washington Ambitious for a Boat Club.

A movement is on foot among the lovers of the aquatic sport in East Washington to establish a first-class boat club, to be comestablish a first-class boat club, to be com-posed of young men living in that section of the city. The material for such a purpose is abundant, and with Lewis, Mansfield, McDermott, Robey and others the up-town boat clubs would indeed have all they could do to retain their laurels. The following circular has been sent out:

Weakening a Little.

We passed from out the dazzling light;
We left the rustling throng of dancers
Miss Smith had said to me, "We might,
i almost think, sit out the lancers."
And, wandering on, we lost our way—
A country house is most perpiexing—
Miss Smith was filled with sweet dismay
And closer clung—twas very vexing.

We rested at a window seat,
My hand detained a hand half willing:
We murnured of the floor, the heat,
And other things as wildly thrilling.
Some mistletce, o'erhead entwined,
Gave rise to arch but tompting banter,
I kissed her—lost my peace of mind—
"got a piece of hers instanter."

She stamped her foot, her bosom rose
And fell with maidenly vexation;
She said—but what she said bord knows:
For I was lost in admiration.
But there she stood, a deer at bay,
A picture for a master's sketching;
I soothed her as a morial may,
And thought she never looked so fetch ing.

My deeds were rash, my words insane-At length we could no longer tarry— And when we joined the dance again Miss Smith was Kate and I was Harry. Ten years' possession has not tired My love, but I'm in this position; The tantims which I once admired Have palled from frequent repetition.

Mary Anderson's Quid.

Mary Anderson's Quid.

The Milwaukee Sus is responsible for the following anecdote of Mary Anderson. Of course there must be a peck of truth in it: "It is well known that Miss Anderson is addicted to the gum chewing habit, and that when she goes tipon the stage she sticks her chew of gum on an old castle painted on the scenery. There was a wicked young man playing a minor part in the play who had been trented scornfully by Mary, as he thought, and he had been heard to say he would make her sick. He did. He took her chew of gum and spread it out so it was as thin as paper, then placed a chew of tobacco inside, neatly wrapped it up, and stuck it back on the old castle. Mary came off when the curtain went down, and going up to the castle she bit like a bass. Putting the gun, which she had no idea was loaded, into her mouth, she mashed it between her ivories and rolled it as a sweet morsel under her tongue. It is said by those who happened to be behind the scenes that when the tobacco began to get in its work there was the worst transformation scene that ever appeared on the stage. The air, one supe said, seemed to be full of fine cut tobacco and spruce gum, and Mary stood there and aspruce gum, and Mary stood there and 1856-57 at Foundry Church, Washington, D. the worst transformation scene that ever appeared on the stage. The air, one supe said, seemed to be full of fine cut tobacco

A recent estimate fixes the wheat product of 1881 at 358,962,000 bushels, sub-divided locally as follows: Western States, 248,137,-000 bushels; Pacific coast, 33,325,000 bushels; Colorado and the Territories, 12,000,000 bush els; New England, 1,000,000 bushels; Middle States, 34,500,000 bushels; Southern States, 40,000,000 bushels; total, 368,962,000 bushcls. This estimate makes the product of the Western States, during 1881, 95,433,000 bushels less than it was last year. The corn crop of the Western States in 1881 is now estimated at 869,241,000 bushels, against a product in the same States in 1850 of 1,130,052,000 bushels; and the corn crop of the whole country is estimated at 1,183,641,000 bushels, a decline of about one-third on the expected yield. It would not be surprising if this estimate of the corn crop should exceed the actual product, but it seems to be generally conceded that the shortage is not as great as was at one time feared, and the general outlook at present, in reference to the corn crop, is better now than it appeared

Presence of Mind.

A butcher's boy, carrying a tray on his shoulders, accidently struck it against a lady's head, and nearly knocked her hat off. "The dence take the tray," cried the lady in passion. "Madam," said the boy gravely, "the dence cannot take the tray."

Some of the facts in regard to the salmon business on the Pacific coast are very remarkable. The census has already given us about the total number of fish caught there in 1880, but now we have this year's practical results in canned salmon. So far there has been shipped to Liverpool alone from the Columbia River, taken direct by vessels, 286,660 cases, each case containing 48 pounds of salmon. Over one-half of the whole salmon catch goes to Liverpool from the Columbia; another portion is sent to San Francisco for inland distribution. This quantity is estimated at 172,133 cases. There are ships still to be loaded with salmon from Astoric extent to the columbia of the columbia o ire ships still to be loaded with salmor from Astoria, so that altogether, according to the San Francisco Bulletin, the total catch on the Columbia River alone this season will be about 550,000 cases. But this business of canning salmon does not belong exclusively to the Columbia; there are many other rivers now having canneries. many other rivers now having canneries. This year the Sacramento River puts up 200,000 cases; the Fraser River, 160,000; Skeena, Naas and Klawat Rivers, 45,000; Puget Sound, 6,000; Umpqua River, 14,000; Smith River, 6,000, and Eel River, 7,000 cases, or altogether there are very close on to a million cases put up on the Pacific coast. Actually, by count, 48,000,000 pounds will be shipped. The question is: Will this abundance of salmon continue? It is natural to suppose that in time, when the rivers are more disturbed, fish will diminish; but in the Columbia River, although the quantity of salmon taken has been immense, the decrease of fish has not been perceptible. But the salmon-canners of the Columbia are by no means without fears that the 5c. per ball; buttermilk, 5c. per quart, and sweet milk, 5c. per quart.

She was pale about the gills, and trembled like an aspen leaf shaken by the wind. She was calm as a summer's morning, and while concealment, like a worm in an apple, gnawed at her stomach and tore her corset strings, she did not upbraid the wretch who had smuggled the vile pill into her countenance. All she said, as she turned her pale face to the painted ivy on the rock, and grasped a painted ivy on the rock, and grasped a painted in an assassin. Murderers to be Hanged.

Murderers to be Hanged.

Warrants were issued by the governor of Pennsylvania yesterday for the execution of Emanuel Ettinger, Jonathan Moyer and Israel Erb on Friday, December 16, 1881. These men were concerned in the murder, on December 9, 1877, of John and Gretchen Kintzler, his wife, who were surprised in their habitation, an old log house, in Snyder County, and clubbed to death. After the commission of the crime the murderers divided the money secured, said to have Murderers to be Hanged. the commission of the crime the murderers divided the money secured, said to have amounted to about $2,000, and set fire to the house and burned up the corpses. Soon after the murder a young woman who had accompanied the murderers to the scene of the tragedy and witnessed a portion of it, made a confession implicating Ettinger and Erb. These men were tried, but aequitted because the woman's testimony was not corroborated. Subsequently Ettinger and Erb, thinking they were safe from further molestation, admitted their connection with the crime. They were tried last year, and on overwhelming evidence convicted. Jon-athan Moyer was also convicted, the prin-cipal witness against him being a girl to whom he had confessed the crime soon after its commission. Umrich Moyer, one of the alleged murderers, escaped to the West.

Gen. Jubal Early and the Captain. We all know that our solid "Old Jube" likes to talk about the war. Well, the other day at Franklin Court-house an old other day at Franklin Court-house an old friend, with a spice of humor in his eye, told the General there was a young officer in town he would like to introduce to him, and they could talk over the war together. Jubal said he would be pleased to know him. No sooner said than done. "Gen. Early," said the old friend, "allow me to introduce to you Capt. Jones," and the old friend walked off. The handshaking was hardly over before the General asked, in his fine, squeaking voice: "What command in the army did you belong to, Captain?" "O, pshaw! General," said the young man, blushing, "I wasn't an officer in the army, I am just a captain of a base-ball club." "O, tell!" cried old Jubal. That broke up the war chat.

the war chat. The Secret Service Division of the Treasury Department recently ascertained that an establishment in Connecticut was enaged in manufacturing paper or pasteboard imitation nickles, ten-cent silver-pieces quarter dollars and other minor coins. These imitations were extensively circu-lated through the medium of prize packages of various descriptions, and complaints were received from Western cities that the spurious money was being passed to a great extent on street railroad cars using patent boxes. Chief Brooks ordered an investiga-tion, and has just been informed by Detec-tive Drummond that the manufacturers were conducting the business in an inno cent manner, and were not aware that the violating the laws. ingly gave up the materials used, and promised to discontinue the business.
